Retail real estate is a handful. Banjo gives you one less thing to worry about.

We hate to name-drop but Rappaport, Avison Young, Cushman & Wakefield, and JBG Smith, among others, have all used Banjo and More Vang to make their lives easier.

It's understandable.

Banjo is software designed to help you manage your print and other physical marketing assets effectively and efficiently. Everything from business cards to building signage, promo items, prospect gifts, brochures, and banners. Once you're set up on Banjo, we'll take care of getting you exactly what you need, where and when you need it. On brand and on budget.

Banjo can even take care of logistical challenges like the installation of customized signage, at exactly the right spot— the right angle even—within a location. Just set up your signage needs, and we'll take care of every order, large or small, two-dimensional or three.

Back to that name dropping. Here are a few nice words from Jarnell Swecker, Vice President of Marketing at Rappaport:

"I don't really know how we managed our signage needs before Banjo. It makes it incredibly easy and efficient for us to order new signs, get them installed quickly and accurately, and not have to worry about the logistical details."

To see how Banjo can meet your print and marketing asset management and logistical needs, and let you focus on the demands of retail real estate, call 571.527.4172 or visit printwithbanjo.com to learn more.

banjo

Taking the pain out of print.
printwithbanjo.com